DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The listing of references in the specification is not a proper information disclosure statement. 37 CFR 1.98(b) requires a list of all patents, publications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office, and MPEP § 609 A(1) states, "the list may not be incorporated into the specification but must be submitted in a separate paper." Therefore, unless the references have been cited by the examiner on form PTO-892, they have not been considered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Matthews, III et al., patent #6,469,721, hereinafter Matthews.
4. With regard to claim 1, which teaches a listing comprising an initial listing of items and an enhanced listing of programs of said items on the initial listing wherein the items on the enhanced listing include enhancements to assist the user in selecting a list of the programs, Matthews teaches, in column 15, lines 9-55 and in figure 22, a list comprising a textural description of each item along with a corresponding icon depicting further information regarding the item and, upon selection, providing preview information to the user. With regard to claim 1, further teaching a means for selecting programs on the listing, Matthews teaches, in column 6, lines 47-51, input means for selecting items.

5. With regard to claim 2, which teaches the enhanced listing being presented sequentially item by item to provide enhancement presentations for a brief period of item sufficient to allow the user to decide on a selection, Matthews teaches, in column 15, lines 9-55, in column 4, lines 17-39, and in figure 22, the added icon (enhanced listing) being presented for each item in the list and providing a short preview of the information to allow for user selection.

6. With regard to claim 3, which teaches the enhancements being audio sound sequences, Matthews teaches, in column 15, lines 41-46, the preview information being an audio file.

7. With regard to claim 4, which teaches the enhancements being pictures and/or video sequences, Matthews teaches, in column 15, lines 41-46, the preview information being a text, an image of the speaker, or a short movie.

8. With regard to claim 5, which teaches the audio sound sequences being from an MP3 plug-in or plug-ins for other video or image formats, Matthews teaches, in column 16, lines 1-5, the sequences of preview information being in one of any of a plurality of text, audio, image, or video formats.

9. With regard to claim 6, which teaches the pictures being from an MPEG4 or JPEG plug-in or plug-ins for other video or image formats. Matthews teaches, in column 16, lines 1-5, the sequences of preview information being in one of any of a plurality of text, audio, image, or video formats, and further specifically mentions JPEG type files.

10. With regard to claim 7, which teaches a computer system comprising: a processor, and an operating system memory containing programs and a presentation means, Matthews teaches, in column 6, lines 7-63, a computer system comprising a processor and a operating system memory containing programs displayable on a display. With regard to claim 7, further teaching an enhancement listing generator wherein listings of programs are sequentially provided with enhanced presentations on a presentation means to assist user to assist the user in selecting a list of the programs, Matthews teaches, in column 15, lines 9-55 and in figure 22, a list comprising a textural description of each item along with a corresponding icon depicting further information regarding the item and, upon selection, providing preview information to the user. With regard to claim 1, further teaching a means for selecting programs on the listing, Matthews teaches, in column 6, lines 47-51, input means for selecting items.

11. With regard to claim 8, which teaches the enhanced presentations being pictures, Matthews teaches, in column 15, lines 41-46, the preview information being a text, an image of the speaker, or a short movie.

12. With regard to claim 9, which teaches the enhanced presentations being saved, Matthews teaches, in column 16, lines 35-38, the previews being stored at a remote location.

13. With regard to claim 10, which teaches the enhanced presentations being user generated and stored in a recall menu, Matthews teaches, in column 15, lines 9-55 and in figure 22, the previews being displayed apart from the textural list and further being provided in a separate preview area.

14. With regard to claim 11, which teaches the system including an Internet connection and browser and the enhanced presentations being received from the remote source, Matthews teaches, in column 16, lines 35-51, the preview information being received from a remote location over the internet, it is further inherent that some sort of browser is used to accept this information (URLs are used by Web browsers to locate Internet resources).

15. With regard to claim 12, which teaches the listing items being HTML tags with addresses and the enhancements being samples from the addresses, Matthews teaches, in column 16, lines 35-51, the listings comprising addresses which are used to retrieve, over the internet, the preview information.

Conclusion

16. The prior art made of record on form PTO-892 and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Applicant is required under 37 C.F.R. § 1.111(c) to consider these references fully when responding to this action. The documents cited therein teach systems for providing preview information along with a listing of items.
